Dear head of Србска Акција!

In the 21st century, the mankind has been struck by an epidemic of the new frightening disease. Just like plague in the Middle Ages, this disease destroys the nations and peoples of Europe. The name of this disease is Tolerance. The countries that have been standing there for centuries are nearly collapsing, being attacked thereby. Today we are witnessing how the forces that are far beyond in another continent, in order to solve their internal problems, are trying to dictate to Russia and Europe the behavior that leads to the destruction of their economies, political systems and traditional values.

For centuries, losers, criminals, cultists and pervers have been emigrating from Europe overseas. The descendants of these people now want to impose their will on all of us who are still living in the Old Country. Artificial and forced introduction of the values that have nothing to do with the traditional values of Europe and Russia have not only led to significant political and ideological confrontation in Europe, but also to direct economic confrontation. The economic and diplomatic contacts which have been established by decades are being destroyed, sanctions are being imposed, leading to mutual collapse of the economies.

After a little while the point of no return will be passed, and it will be impossible to rebuild trust and partnership relations.

In such circumstances, there emerges the new understanding of conservatism as the progressive and the only rightful ideological trend that is capable to contribute to the mankind's survival.

The problem of global antagonism to each other in all spheres of life is the lack of clearly defined leader of the process of recovery of the traditional values of our countries, the so-called "conservative arbiter" of Europe. Russia must regain the status of the cradle of true morality and defender of the conservative ideals. Now more than ever, the role of leader is critically important for the unification of Europe and Russia, the leader having his own opinion and the ability to bring it to real life. Based on this, Russia should become the basis of the conservative thought.

In order for all members of the conservative forces in Europe and Russia to come together and to find the ways of their successful cooperation, the International Congress "Russian International Conservative Forum" will be held on March 22, 2015 in St. Petersburg (the Russian Federation, Northwestern Federal District) at the address: Moskovsky prospect, 97A (Congress Mall of Holiday Inn Hotel). This Forum will bring together all the social and political movements which support healthy conservatism in their countries. Congress has had no parallel in history of the Russian and world politics.

The purpose of the Congress will be jointing the effort to develop the general concept of interaction of the national-conservative forces in Europe and Russia.

The main objective of the Forum will become signing of the memorandum on organization of the permanent coordination committee which will include all members of the conservative forces of Europe and Russia.

Our forum has invited the right-wing conservative politicians of the European Union, the conservative public figures and many well-known public and political figures of the Russian Federation.

I invite representatives of your organization and friendly to you the organizations which you recommend to us for the invitation, to take part in the International congress "International Russian Conservative Forum". The program and the schedule of a forum enclose to this letter. Concerning participation I ask to report about your decision, having responded to this letter. Are ready to enter to you into a correspondence concerning a format and conditions of your participation in action.

Sincerely,
Chairman of the Organization
Committee of Russian
International Conservative Forum
